University of Wyoming

View of University of Wyoming campus in 1890s, looking northeast. No date, American Heritage Center.

An institute of higher education within the United States of America is never an island. Colleges and universities in America can be defined by their fundamental connections to their local and state communities, the country as a whole, and the world at large. Throughout its history, the University of Wyoming (UW) has been distinguished by various connections that helped to define and improve not only UW, but the city of Laramie, the great State of Wyoming, the United States of America, and the entire world community.

This exhibit includes its early days of operation during the late 19th century and its expansion over the next 100 years, university presidents, university programs that helped establish and refine agricultural practices on the campus and throughout the city and state, university military programs that helped establish and refine defense tactics for the nation, UW Cowboy athletics and Wyoming's athletes, and many other highlights of the University of Wyoming's history.

Size: 24 framed items (2 crates).

UNIVERSITY
OF WYOMING
American Heritage Center

The American Heritage Center (AHC) is the University of Wyoming's repository of manuscripts and special collections, rare books, and the university archives. Its collections focus on Wyoming and the Rocky Mountain West (including but not limited to politics, settlement, and western trails), environment and conservation, the mining and petroleum industries, air and rail transportation, the performing arts (particularly radio, television, film, and popular music), journalism, and US military history.

Students and scholars from around the globe use these collections for research. The AHC also sponsors a wide range of scholarly and popular programs including lectures, concerts, symposia, and exhibits. Housed in a landmark building shared with the University Art Museum, access to the AHC is free
